What is the FBI NICS E-Check?

The FBI NICS E-Check allows authorized users to access the NICS through a secure Internet connection. Registered FFLs and their registered employees can perform searches and retrievals on NICS transactions in accordance with the Brady Handgun Violence Prevention Act of 1993. To learn how an FFL can register refer to the registering to use the FBI NICS E-Check help section.

<< Return to System Overview

Why should I use the FBI NICS E-Check?

Some benefits of using the FBI NICS E-Check are:

- Ability to retrieve NICS background check results 24 hours a day.
- Ability to print completed NICS background check search requests to facilitate FFL record keeping.
- Increased usability for the hearing impaired.
- Protects your customer's descriptive information against identity theft.
- Reduced NICS Call Center traffic.
- Safeguards your FFL Number and Codeword.

<< Return to System Overview

What are the benefits of using the FBI NICS E-Check vs. the NICS Call Center?

The FBI NICS E-Check processing time is quicker. The FBI NICS E-Check will allow NICS employees to complete delayed transactions without consuming time calling the FFL with the results of the transaction. FFLs will then be able to obtain the results of a NICS background check via the FBI NICS E-Check.

<< Return to System Overview

Who can use the FBI NICS E-Check?

Any FFL and/or their designated representatives who normally contacts NICS for firearm transactions may use the FBI NICS E-Check. Individuals that utilize the FBI NICS E-Check are required to register with the FBI NICS E-Check to obtain access. This system can be used only for firearm transactions in accordance with the Brady Handgun Violence Prevention Act of 1993.

<< Return to System Overview

What is required to use the FBI NICS E-Check?

To use the FBI NICS E-Check, each user will be required to obtain an E-Check account from the FBI to personally identify each user. An E-Check account & password will be required to access the FBI NICS E-Check through the Internet.

<< Return to System Overview

How does the FBI NICS E-Check work?

Previously, FFLs were required to initiate NICS checks via the telephone. A NICS Customer Service Representative validated the FFL by obtaining the FFL license number and codeword. After validation, the FFL conveyed the transaction information and the Customer Service Representative initiated the background check.

The FBI NICS E-Check allows registered FFLs to request background checks through a Web browser connected to the Internet. After the transaction information has been submitted, the system will reply with the status.

<< Return to System Overview

How does an individual appeal a NICS denial decision?

When an individual is denied the transfer of a firearm, they may initiate an appeal by accessing <http://www.fbi.gov/nics-appeals>. Individuals that do not have internet access may appeal the decision in writing directly to:

Federal Bureau of Investigation
NICS Section
Appeal Services Unit
PO Box 4278
Clarksburg, WV 26302-9922

Appeals submitted in writing must include the NICS Transaction Number (NTN) and a valid address for the appellant.

You may obtain an Appeal Brochure online at:

http://www.fbi.gov/about-us/cjis/nics/appeals/nics_appeals_brochure_eng

<< Return to System Overview

May I still use the NICS Call Center?

Yes.

FFLs using the FBI NICS E-Check will have the continued ability to access the NICS via the NICS Call Center to conduct firearm background checks and status retrievals.

<< Return to System Overview

Will I receive responses on delayed transactions more quickly?

The FBI NICS E-Check will allow NICS employees to complete delayed transactions without consuming time calling the FFL with the results of the transaction. FFLs will be able to obtain the results of a NICS background check via the FBI NICS E-Check as soon as the status is applied. The time savings will allow NICS examiners more time to conduct research and analysis on the remaining NICS delayed transactions.

<< Return to System Overview

When does the 3-business day waiting period for transfer of a firearm begin?

The Brady Handgun Violence Prevention Act of 1993 requires that Federal Firearm Licensees (FFLs) perform a background check before transferring a firearm. The firearm transfer can be delayed for up to 3-business days while this background check is performed. If local, state, or federal laws prohibit the sale of a firearm to the individual, the firearm transfer will be denied. The 3-business day waiting period begins when the FFL contacts (see below) the NICS.

<< Return to System Overview

What constitutes contacting the NICS?

Contacting the NICS is defined as when the FFL receives an NTN. If an NTN is NOT received by the FFL, the transaction has not been processed through the NICS and the 3-business day waiting period has not begun.

<< Return to System Overview

What are NICS business days?

A business day is any 24-hour period beginning at 12:01 a.m. the day after the check was initiated, in which state offices are open. A business day does not include Saturday, Sunday or state Holidays.

The table below advises when the firearm can be transferred:

How long does the FBI NICS E-Check enrollment process take?

The FBI NICS Section requires the FBI NICS E-Check FFL Enrollment form with signatures (faxed, emailed, or mailed) and the online Enterprise E-Check account request.

You must allow time for the NICS Section to process your request. This is usually done the same day the NICS Section receives the online registration (See #3 in the Registration Process above) and the signed FBI NICS E-Check FFL Enrollment form (See #5 in the Registration Process above).

During this time period, information that the applicant submitted online along with the signed enrollment form and other FFL information on file at the NICS will be reviewed by the FBI to determine whether an Enterprise E-Check account will be issued in response to the FFL user request.

In any case, the NICS will attempt to notify you with the instructions for your Enterprise E-Check account via e-mail or telephone after your request has been processed.

Contact the NICS Section if:

- 5 business days have passed since you mailed, emailed, or faxed your enrollment form, and
- you have submitted your online account request, and
- you have not received notification that your account request has been processed.

What statuses will I receive and what do they mean?

Status	Description
PENDING	No response (DELAY or PROCEED) has been received from the NICS. An NTN is provided. The 3-business day waiting period has begun. Click on the 'Refresh List' button periodically for the next five minutes to receive an updated list.
DELAY	The NICS has responded with a DELAY status. The transaction requires more research by the NICS Section. The FFL is required by law to wait at least 3-business days from the given date to transfer the firearm.
RESEARCHING	No response (DELAY, PROCEED, or DENY) has been received from the NICS. An NTN and Created Date will be listed. A NICS Legal Instruments Examiner is reviewing the transaction to determine a DELAY, PROCEED, or DENY response. This process may take up to 5 minutes; however, the average review time is 90 seconds. The 3-business day waiting period has begun.
OPEN	This status indicates the delay has extended beyond the 3-business days.
NEW	A final response has been received from the NICS. To view the status of a search request, the FFL user will click on NEW and a Confirm Receipt pop-up window will be displayed. This window will show the buyer's name, NTN, and date and time the search was submitted. The FFL will be required to click on the 'CONTINUE' button to confirm receipt of the status. At this point a screen is displayed showing the updated status. The Retrieve Search Results screen will be updated after the status for the search request has been confirmed.
PROCEED	The NICS has issued a PROCEED for this firearm transfer and the FFL has confirmed receipt of the status.
DENY	The NICS has issued a DENY for this firearm transfer and the FFL has confirmed receipt of the status.
CANCEL	The NICS has issued a CANCEL for this firearm transfer and the FFL has confirmed receipt of the status. A CANCEL cannot be originated in the FBI NICS E-Check.
QUEUED	Valid only for E-Check. This "QUEUED" Status is issued if NICS is down or E-Check is otherwise unable to submit the search (i.e. - During NICS Nightly Maintenance). The search will be submitted as soon as NICS is back up. The submission time for the search is the time it is submitted to NICS and not the time it was queued up. An NTN is not generated for the search until the search is submitted to NICS.

Search Check FAQ

What is the Miscellaneous Comment field?

- Miscellaneous comment field is up to 2000 characters in length.
- The FFL can enter any information that is meaningful to them, such as their invoice number.
- The field accepts alphanumeric data and most special characters, with the exception that the following characters will be stripped from the field: period, single quote, ampersand, less than and greater than signs.

<< Return to Search and Retrieve

Non-US Citizen Check FAQ

What are the valid miscellaneous numbers for Non U.S. Citizens?

- Miscellaneous numbers are unique identifying numbers assigned to aliens. There are two possible choices, I94 and ARN.
- The I94 prefix refers to the ICE Form I-94, the Arrival-Departure Record. For example, an alien student will have a completed ICE Form I-94 as well as another document, Form I-20, in order to prove that he or she is allowed to study in the United States. An alien student can find the miscellaneous number associated with prefix I94 from either ICE Form I-94 listed as the Admission Number or from pages three and four of Form I-20.
- The ARN prefix refers to an Alien Registration Number. This number is assigned to aliens by ICE in order to become a citizen of the United States. This number can be found on the second I-797 Approval Notice, for example, A77 ### ##.

Where can I get more information on documents, terms, exceptions, etc?

- 18 U.S.C. Chap 44, § 922 (y), (2) and (3) have more detailed documents covering and expanding on the topics discussed.

Retrieve Requests Help

The Retrieve Requests page consists of the following:

- A message to FFL field.
- A 'Refresh List' button.
- A table of retrieval requests.

Message Field

The FBI NICS E-Check message field consists of messages that are system-wide as well as messages directed to any one individual FFL. These status messages deal with system availability, policy changes, business hours, etc. Be sure to check this information often as it may change at any time.

Refresh List Button

The  button is used to reload the Retrieve Requests table and update any statuses that may have been changed.

Requests

The Requests table consists of the following headers and one example: Click on each field of the example for more information.

You can sort the retrieval requests table by clicking on the column headings which are underlined.

Last Name	First Name	NTN	Created Date	Submit User	Status
Doe	John	05S9JWG	09/13/2001 14:29:41	username1	PENDING

Last and First Name

The last and first name field is the name that was entered originally upon the Search Request. Be certain that the status you are checking matches with the name.

<< Return to Top

NTN

The NICS Transaction Number is important for several reasons:

- The NTN demonstrates that contact has been made with the NICS.
- The 3 business days begin after the NTN is issued.
- The NTN serves as a means to identify the transaction.
- The NTN is the key to a denied individual should they choose to appeal the denial.
- The NTN creates an audit trail to confirm that an authorization to transfer a firearm has been received.

<< Return to Top

Date

The Date and Time stamp is the time when the NTN was assigned from the FBI NICS E-Check. This also marks the beginning of the 3 business day response window. See Section 5 in the FFL Manual.

Status

The Status is the response from the FBI NICS check. For status definitions, click here.

NTN History Query Help

The NTN History Query screen allows you to query NICS E-Check for status and purchaser data for NTNs that have already been submitted. Historical data is only available through NICS E-Check for a limited amount of time. For information on older transactions, you must call Customer Service.

There are four ways to perform an NTN History Query:

- NTN Search
- Search by Date Range
- Status Search by Date Range
- All NTNs (Returns all NTNs available through NICS E-Check)

NTN Search

Within the box titled "NTN Search", enter the NTN number to be queried.

Click the  button to perform the query.

Search by Date Range

Within the box titled "NTN Search (By Date Range)", enter a start date and end date to limit the query results. A valid date must be entered in both fields to perform the query.

Click the  button to perform the query.

The results for a date range query may be sorted by NICS created date, NTN, status, purchaser last name, submitted by username, and retrieved by username.

Status Search by Date Range

Within the box titled "Status NTN Search (By Date Range)", enter a start date and end date to limit the query results. A valid date must be entered in both fields to perform the query. The query returns the NTNs in which a status was applied during the selected time frame.

Click the  button to perform the query.

All NTNs

The "All NTNs" option returns data for all NTNs for the FFL available through NICS E-Check. Click on the "All NTNs" option then click on the  button to perform the query.

Please note: The NICS Section can only retain descriptive data on approved transactions for a period of up to 24 hours. Therefore, if the transaction received a Proceed response, the NTN will not be returned in the above queries if more than 24 hours have elapsed.

Results Screen

The results table is displayed in a format similar to the Retrieve Screen. Each entry in the results table may be clicked to display more information for that search request. The browser's built-in print functions may be used to print the entire results table or the individual search request detail information.

If there is an error processing the query, an appropriate help message is displayed. For example, if all valid data is not entered for a date range query, the user is instructed to go back and correct the search parameters. If the entered parameters are valid but no results are returned, a message is displayed to notify the user that information on NTNs not available through NICS E-Check are still available by calling Customer Service.

There are several reasons why a valid search may return zero results:

- The entered NTN may be outside the NICS E-Check historical retention period.
- The entered NTN may not exist.
- The entered NTN may belong to another FFL.
- There are no transactions within the entered date range.

All of these cases generate the same display message. If you receive no results but believe that you have entered a valid NTN (created within the NICS E-Check retention period) or date range that should contain transactions, call Customer Service.

The initial results table consists of the following headers (Click on each header for description):

Last Name	First Name	NTN	Created Date	Submit User	Retrieve User	Status	Status Date	Retrieve Date
Doe	John	05S9JWG	09/13/2001 14:29:41	username1	username2	PENDING	09/13/2001 16:21:26	09/14/2001 11:05:14
